THE MANUAL EXERCISE,

Given in sea phrases, by Capt. Oakum, who commands a corps of Sea Fencibles in Barbadoes.

My lads. The first thing you have to do, is to answer to your names—when you hear the word "attention," you must bring both the starboard and larboard heels to bear together, keeping your jib-stays taught bowed up, and square your shoulders by the lifts and braces clapping both your fists against your bends, one and all at the same moment, till the words "stand at ease," when the hollow of the starboard foot must be smartly backed a stern of the heel of the larboard one. You must also clap an over-hand knot upon your fist athwart your bread bag; after coming to attention, at the words "shoulder arms," rouse brown Bess by the middle, and bowse her up from the lower tier of the starboard side, to the larboard bow, keeping a good look out that she don't make a lee-lurch and capsize, otherwise you'll be apt to knock out your messmate's toplights.—At the words "secure arms," the starboard arm which is now fast to the starboard bends, must go athwart your bread bag, in order to seize Brown Bess by the breech, clapping your larboard fists to her midships; be sure to have her muzzle a head, so that her breech will come right under your larboard wing, so as to secure her fire works from squalls, no tarpaulings being allowed—after shouldering, at the words "present arms," you slew Bess half round, and seize her with the starboard fist, then fetch her up between your two top-lights, so that your flying jib-boom will be two inches from her midships: be sure to back the hollow of the starboard foot astern the heel of the larboard one, during this motion; after bringing Bess from the larboard bow, the next is "advance arms," both of the two first motions of which, are the same as "presents," but at the third, you leave her alongside of the starboard bends, seizing the guard with the starboard fist, so as to secure her alongside. So much for one lesson.

SWEEP CHIMNEY SWEEP!

ITALIAN PROVERBS.
He who serves God has the best master in the world.

He who lives disorderly one year does not live comfortably for five years to come.

When the ship is sunk, every sailor knows how she might have been saved.

Weariness can snore upon the flint, when sloth finds the downy pillow hard.

If all the year were playing holidays, to sport would be as tedious as to work; but when they seldom come they wished for come; and nothing pleaseth but rare incidents.

One of the most useful effects of action, is, that it renders repose agreeable.

He who is puffed up with the first gale of prosperity, will bend beneath the first blast of adversity.

He who cannot bear a jest, ought never to make one.

Comparative Expenditure.

It has been estimated, that the annual income of all the Bible and Missionary society in the British empire would not do more than defray the yearly maintenance of one ship of the line. Such is the comparative expenditure of Christianity and War! Let this impose silence on all cavillers, who grudge the revenues of Benevolent societies; and let it stimulate the exertions of Christians, that by the wider diffusion of their principles, wars may become less frequent, and the copious streams which feed them, be diverted into channels by which they will fertilize and bless the world.

ANSWER.

"DEAR MADAM,—Accept my best thanks for your congratulation. This is not an hour for criticism; but I will softly whisper to my friend, that Pope's Essays where in perfect harmony with Young's Night Thoughts.

"Yours, &c. E. POPE."

A CURIOUS FACT.

A person who kept a shop in Hounslow, having occasion the other day to go to his back warehouse, perceived a huge rat busily employed in demolishing some eatable goods in a corner of the room. With a view to destroy the animal, the man retreated to fetch a stick; when he returned, the rat, perceiving his foe, ran off, and immediately made for the hole through which it is supposed he entered the premises. His pursuer, just as the rat was about to enter this retreat, levelled a pretty smart blow at him, and struck the stick (which was rather a stout one) with some force against the wains.

coat of the room; when to his very great astonishment, as well as to his joy, a most complete shower of gold (guineas) instantly descended from some lodgment within the wainscoat before his wondering eyes! This extraordinary circumstance very naturally suggesting the propriety of repeating the blow, expecting a repetition of the same good fortune—nor indeed was he, in his expectation and wishes, disappointed. When he had gathered the whole of his golden store, he found upon counting, he had absolutely picked up upwards of 350 guineas! From the appearance of the gold, it is supposed this hoard must have been secreted within the wainscoat for many, very many years.

The house, it seems, has been in the occupation of the present occupier's father and relatives for nearly a century.

PATHOS.

"The fleecy clouds of morning were now tinged with nature's richest vermilion—The sun was just lifting his radiant head above the stately trees of the forest—the feathered Handels of nature sang forth their sweetest carols, and the universe had borrowed the robes of May—when Sylvia more beautiful than Diana—walked out to feed her chickens."

DETAINING FORGED BANK NOTES.

On Friday the 13th ult. Mr. Jas. Bate of Cheapside, appeared before the Lord Mayor at the Mansion house, to answer to a charge, exhibited against him by the Bank of England, for passing a five pound note, knowing it to be forged. The circumstances of the case were as follows, Mr. Bate presented the note at the Bank, when Henry Hogen, one of the inspectors of notes, declared it to be forged; Mr. Bate, requested to look at the indorsement which he recognizing, put the note in his pocket; the Clerk ran to the door, stopped him, and said that the Bank insisted upon its being placed in their hands, this Mr. Bate refused, gave his address; and carried away the note; which on being presented to the person from whom he had received it, was instantly changed. This person presented the note again at the bank, and it was instantly seized and marked as a forgery. Mr. Bate had immediately on passing the note, given information at the Bank. Mr. Westwood, who attended on the part of the Bank, referred to an Act of Parliament, to prove the offence felony, remarking that had he been there, he would have put Mr. Bate in charge of a constable. "I dare say you would be capable of attempting it," replied Mr. Bate, "but you should have answered for it. My property to me, is as sacred as that which is considered to belong to the bank of England and of the integrity of my conduct in the present case, as well as my duty. I will, I have no doubt fully satisfy every honest man, as well as the Lord Mayor. The charge was dismissed

UPS AND DOWNS.

Nothing seems more opposite than Up and Down—the fact is obvious to the meanest capacity; but in figure of speech, they may be so employed as to mean the same thing. We say of a man who is tugging against the persecutions of fortune, "that nothing is more difficult than for him to get along; it is all up hill work."

We say of one who is descending the heights of fortune to which he had mounted, that "he is going down hill," and to make the proverb good, we very often give such a man a kick to assist his descent. See the variety of instances, in which these opposite metaphors are employed to mean nearly the same thing.

If we see a youth struggling against the disadvantages of early birth, and the want of friends, we sigh and say, "Ah! it is all in vain for him to strive; it is all up hill work."

If we see a man experiencing a series of reverses, and fortune frowning upon him, we say that he is fast going down hill.

It is up hill work to be driven down the stream of fortune; and he who is thus driven down, is said to be going down hill.

Unhappy he! who is labouring up hill, or who is descending it. In point of facts as well as of figure, he will find the world ready to pull him back or push him faster down.

The English embassy (report says) has not been received, and are on their way back with all their presents, except three articles which the emperor deigned to receive, and return three articles in form; it is said here the emperor having sent his Mandarins to meet Lord Amherst, to instruct him in the forms of his court, hurried him on so fast that he had to leave his baggage behind, and that immediately upon the ambassadors' entry into Peking, sent him word he was setting on his throne, expecting him, and that Lord A. wishing to have his presents with him, apologized for not waiting on him by the old excuse of sickness. The next day, and the next the emperor sent the same message, and receiving the same answer, immediately ordered him to withdraw from Peking, and return to his own country with all convenient speed. The above is the story told us by the Chinese, and you may believe as much as you please; and farther if it proves true, it will be the first true report that ever came to European ears thro' Chinamen, where the emperor was concerned, that ever I heard of in (now) five voyages, that I have been here. By some of the vessels that have gone home, you will also hear that the English brig that brought out the ambassador, knocked down the Fort at the Bocca Tigris, and passed in spite of them. This we were told at Macao, and when passing up expected to see the ruined fort. But when we came alongside of it, it stood as usual, and not the least appearance of a shot of any kind having touched it. We examined them minutely on both sides, and having the pursers of the frigates on board with us, he as well as ourselves were perfectly satisfied the frigate had not even fired at either of them. So much for China news. No truth and nothing to be relied on unless you see it yourself, or have it from a friend.

Extract of a letter from Havre-de-Grace, to a mercantile house in this city, dated 27th January, received by the Catharine.
Havre, 27th Jan. 1817.
"Within the last month, some considerable business has been done in cottons, and about 1500 bales have been sold since the 1st instant, as per note annexed. If this article keeps up in England, as appears probable, we do not think it will go any lower here than our present quotations.
"Rice continues very scarce, and new Carolina would now bring 60 francs per 50 kils; but it cannot be expected that high price could be obtained if several cargoes were to be received here. We are however of opinion, considering the dearth of all kinds of bread stuff throughout France, that good rice will not be under 50 francs before the next harvest.
There has been but little done in tobacco for some time past; but 116 hogsheads of very good Virginia were sold about 10 days ago, at 115 francs; and some small parcels of an ordinary quality since at 102 francs per 50 kils. in bond. It is expected their common qualities of Maryland and Kentucky will be considerably lower, when the new crop comes to market.

15 bales American."

Extract from another letter, same date.
"Since our advices of the 5th inst. rice has experienced an advance, which we think it necessary to mention, though our market continues bare of that article; we therefore shall mention what has been done in the Capita, where old Carolina sold at the unprecedented rate of 70 francs, and that of the last fall at 75 a 75 francs. Contracts were likewise made for new rice, at 60 francs deliverable in April, and 62 1/2 francs deliverable in March next; which latter operation may serve as a pretty sure criterion for future shipments."

"The demand for cotton continues very active, and a general revival of the manufactures seems to have taken place, sooner indeed than had been anticipated—prices, in consequence, have rather improved; Geor. Upland, 42 a 44 sous. Louisiana, 45 a 48 sous. Sea Islands, 3f. 40c.; we are still however of opinion, that cottons will prove a bad season throughout the year, unless prices come down. We cannot see the price of flour, none yet having been imported from your settlements. Wheat remains at 100 francs the sack."

New-York, April 4.
LATEST FROM LONDON.
The brig Wrangler, that arrived last evening from Havre-de-Grace touched at the Isle of Wight, where she procured London Papers to the 7th February. We were not so fortunate as to obtain the loan of them, but understand they do not contain any news of moment. Parliament had met and proceeded to business. After the Prince Regent had delivered his speech and was returning to Carleton House, his carriage was attacked by the mob, pelted with stones and the windows broken.
The papers quote wheat at 120s to 130s. per quarter.
By the arrival of the ship Sachem, from Port-au-Prince, we learn, that the privateer Cioro, Ford, formerly the Ant, of Baltimore, had been seized, together with her three prizes, by Petion, and it was expected they would all be condemned. A large amount of specie was found on board the privateer, and taken possession of by the government.
The privateer True-blooded-Yankee, Jewett, had sent into Port-au-Prince, the schooner Mary, of New York, owned by a Mr. Strong, on board. Captain Jewett had relinquished his claim to the Mary, but the government had seized and taken possession of her.
A large privateer schooner commanded by Champlin, had touched in at Port-au-Prince for supplies, where she remained 4 days. The government were about to seize the schooner when Captain Champlin ordered his men to quarters, and threatened to sink the first vessel, great or small, that attempted to come alongside with an officer from the government.

Baltimore, March 7.
Captain Tuck of the ship Globe, arrived at Holmes' Hole from Port-au-Prince, [which he left the 8th of March] has forwarded to Boston, the following memoranda, stating that a sloop from Barcelona arrived at Port-au-Prince, on the 4th March from Jacmel, with intelligence, that the Patriot army under Bolivar, and the Royal army under Morilli, had had (from the 15th to the 18th Feb.) several bloody conflicts near Barcelona; that Bolivar ultimately triumphed, having killed, &c. nearly all the royal troops; and that the independence of that part of South America would be secured.

Charleston, March 31.
Latest from France.
The brig Catharine, Capt. Eldred, arrived here yesterday from Havre-de-Grace, which place she left 1st Feb. being 5 days later. Captain E. brought no papers, but informs that nothing new had transpired in France since last dates. The C. came up after the Post office was closed, so that her letters and packets could not be delivered in time to obtain a statement of the markets, &c. for this morning's paper.

SAVANNAH, March 29.
Indian Outrages.—We are informed from a credible source that, besides the act of hostility lately noticed by us, the Indians on the frontier of Camden and Wayne counties, have again repeated their outrages—that a short time since a small party visited Clark's mills, and there evinced (without committing any act of violence) a spirit extremely hostile, painting themselves in their war paint and acting in a manner that convinced every one there of the general hostility of their tribe—the lower Creeks. This party being small, were probably restrained by the numbers of the workmen at the mills. Another party consisting of about 50, forcibly drove off from these counties upwards of 300 head of cattle: the utmost alarm prevails throughout the country. The gentleman, from whom the above information has been obtained, is himself direct from the Camden frontier.
Another gentleman from the same county, states that the inhabitants on the frontier have been compelled to embody themselves in order to plant their crops, proceeding together around from one plantation, successively to the other.

Married, at Pope's Creek, in Westmoreland county, on Tuesday last, by the Rev. Mr. Norris, Maj. Henry Lee, late of the United States' army, to Miss Ann R. McCarty, daughter of the late Daniel McCarty, Esq. of the same county.

Married.—In Northumberland, [Eng] Mr. Peter Percer aged 180, to the widow Hannah Godfrey aged 80. This couple had been lovers from their childhood. But owing to what is termed a love squabble, the lass turned her back, and the swain, supposing her to be in earnest, out of spite married another. Her case being now hopeless in regard to Percy, for revenge gets married herself. They both had however strange feelings when they met, and secretly resolved to marry, if the death of their partners permitted. She at last became a widow, but his wife obstinately persisting to live, she became tired, and married again. His wife now died, but finding his old sweetheart again yoked, and no chance of regaining her, he thought it best to divert a few years with another lady. Her husband and his wife would alternately die, and the other being married, no hope of their union appearing probable. His 7th wife having lately deceased, she became determined not to let the golden opportunity slip, and it is believed for she was a perfect Xantippe,] that she scolded her last poor husband to death, as he did not survive a week. It is a remarkable coincidence that each of Mr. Percy's wives produced him a daughter, and that each of Mrs. Godfrey's husbands was presented with a son the same year; and what is more singular still, each son married the daughter nearest his own age—and the marriage ceremony was performed by the eldest son, who was a minister, in presence of all the other children and their families.

The Paradise of Coquettes,

A POEM, in nine Parts.
A second edition of this elegant Poem is just published and for sale by the Subscribers.

The character of this Poem is thus given by the Quarterly and Edinburgh Reviews:—

"The Paradise of Coquettes; The character in which the poet professes to speak, is that of the POET OF WOMAN. He is supposed to be addressing woman, and woman only, and addressing her, on adventures of which she is the heroine, and on charms and graces, which it is the whole history of her beauty to have exercised with failure or success."
His incontestable merits, and the assiduous care which he has bestowed upon the poem, deserve the warmest praise.
Quarterly Review, Oct. 1814.

We have here a little volume which may be fairly regarded as a prodigy in this age of quarto ballads, romances, heroics, and sentimental simplicity. It is by far the best and most brilliant imitation of Pope, that has appeared since the time of that great writer; with all his point, polish, and nicely balanced versification, as well as his sarcasm and witty malice. He is always at home—always lively and entertaining.
His satire is polished and yet pungent.
His versification, in particular, is almost invariably flowing & harmonious.
Edinburgh Review, Feb. 1815.
"A vein of polite irony runs through the 'Paradise of Coquettes' which was familiar to the writers of the age of Anne and George the First, but has been discarded in making other modern improvements, by our cotemporaries."
James Kennedy & Son.

PAUL'S

Patent Columbian Oil.
In respect to which the Proprietor serves:—

"THE great sales of the Columbian Oil, since it has been brought before the public, prove its intrinsic value, and is a pleasing foreboding of what we have to expect from its more extensive circulation.

Many interesting certificates might be furnished, testifying to the great value of the Columbian Oil, but we have preferred giving but few, wishing to rest more on the merits of the medicine, than on the effects produced by certificates from a source however respectable.

The following are among the complaints in which the Columbian Oil has been found very efficacious, viz. rheumatism, consumption, gout, pains in any part of the body, but more particularly of the back and breast; asthma, phthisis, influenza, colds, coughs, whooping coughs, diseases of the eye and eye lids, tooth-ache, ear ache, and deafness, cholic cramps, external and internal bruises, sprains and flesh wounds, old sores, ulcers, felons, scalds, burns, mumps, dysentery or flux, croop, quincy, diarrhoea or lax, summer complaint of children, indigestion, loss of appetite, nervous debility, piles, mercurial diseases, especially in those cases where the system has been charged with mercury for some considerable time, and in those excruciating pains subsequent to its too great use and exposure. Herpes, or diseases of the skin, such as ring worms, tetter, scald head, &c. stiffness of joints and limbs, palsy, ague and fever, cholera morbus, gravel, gleet, obstructed urine, scurvy, and in almost all cases of a general or local nature.

We are aware that in recommending a medicine in so many diseases, the public, especially those who have not used the Oil, may be induced to question its virtues, but a disposition of this nature will soon be dissipated, when they are informed that a great proportion of the diseases are owing to the same general cause—And in those cases where the diseases differ materially in their nature, the effects produced are nearly the same, although not on the same principle.

A supply of the above just received and for sale by RICHARD H. LITTLE, Druggist, King street.

ON HAND,
Best Spanish Segars, and prime chewing Tobacco.
